The Academy

Founded in 1973 by Mrs. Ann Williams, Dallas Black Dance Academy is the official school of the Dallas Black Dance Theatre. In January 2008, the former Moorland YMCA- located in the Downtown Dallas Arts District, became the permanent home for DBDT's rehearsal studios, training classrooms, and administrative offices.

The Academy emphasizes that through directed dance studies in a learning environment, the mind is disciplined to control one's total body in making better decisions for life and developing self-esteem.

Students of all ages, ethnicities, races, and backgrounds attend these classes and participate in Academy performances.

Classes begin after the Labor Day Holiday and run a full academic year, from September to May.

Students must be age 4 to enroll in the Academy and Ballet is a required enrollment each year. Students may also enroll in additional classes in Jazz, African, Modern, or Hip Hop.

We offer a Parent & Me class for toddlers ages 2-3; this class introduces little ones the basic elements of Ballet, teaches coordination, balance, dance posture, shapes, and nurtures their inner performer.

Professional instructors teach all Academy classes. Many are present and former dancers of the Dallas Black Dance Theatre. Instructors may also use an assistant to help with classes.

Age is used as a general guideline for placement; however students will be evaluated on their independent mastery of the skills and techniques that are taught. Students will be then placed in the class that best matches their age and technical level. Please note regular attendance in class is paramount to a student's progression.

Students who are age 9-15 that show exceptional promise are encouraged to audition for the school's Performing Ensembles. These groups of students perform locally at festivals and various events in the Dallas area.

Students auditioning for Performing Ensembles must be enrolled in 3 or more intermediate academy classes. Auditions are held each fall.

For complete requirements on age and technique level, please contact our Academy office. Participation fees and rehearsals are additional to regular enrollment. Students who progress through the professional level may have the opportunity to audition for DBDT: Encore!, and later audition for the professional company, Dallas Black Dance Theatre.

Techniques: Forms of Dance

Ballet

All students age 4-14 are required to take ballet each year. It is the prerequisite for taking other forms of dance.

Beginning Ballet

For the younger ages (4-5) is a combination of creative movement and basic Ballet positions.

For ages 6 through 10, students will be introduced to Ballet positions, proper execution, self-discipline, body awareness, and correct body alignment.

Intermediate Ballet

Classes build upon the foundation taught in the beginning classes, and Advanced Ballet progresses the student through more difficult technique and eventually preparing the student for Pointe work. Students interested in Pointe must be assessed and approved by the instructor.

Tap

Tap challenges the students' minds with the use of syncopation, isolation, and rhythmic patterns done by the feet.

Jazz

Jazz is a technique-based form of dance that combines elements of ballet and tap. There are many styles of jazz, including traditional, lyrical, and hip-hop. Jazz teaches and enhances coordination, strength, and quickness.

Modern

Modern dance is a more free-style form of dance, emphasizing the use of more varied, natural movements. Modern dancers have traditionally danced barefoot, making their movement more grounded and natural. Dallas Black Dance Academy teaches the Lester Horton modern technique.

African

This class is designed to give the student a mixture of regional dances of Africa. It develops coordination, flexibility and a sense of musicality.

In all classes, the first month is devoted to discipline, placement, and body awareness. DBDA uses this time to evaluate student placement within the proper classes.
